Race Preview: Alesian Beau was consistent without winning in Gauteng. That form is good enough to win on local debut trying the Polytrack. Jet Querari is unreliable but he is also quite capable of winning on local debut on this surface. Sombreuil has shown improvement of late and can also contest the finish. Buddleja is speedy and can hang on for some minor money.

Race Preview: Bomber Bay continues to be a disappointment but does have winning claims in this weak race. Cadenza was not disgraced on debut and should have a lot more to offer. Priceless Pearl was not disgraced on local debut and is not out of it. City Of Port Louis is capable of improving after a change of trainer and trying the Polytrack so should be included in all bets.

Race Preview: Royal Kingdom has looked better the further he has gone so could relish this distance. He does, however, face some rivals who are on their favoured surface. Above The Horizon has won twice on the Polytrack and was a good third last time out so must be respected for that. East Coast Girl was not disgraced on the grass last time out and has been very effective on the Polytrack so should be right there at the finish. Supreme Judge has some fair recent form and could consider for the minor place.

Race Preview: Cliff Top has struggled of late but was impressive on this surface earlier this year and could make all the running again. Paris Lass has a couple of good runs this course and distance so is always a threat if allowed a soft lead. Roman Agent has been very good since changing trainers and should be right there at the finish. Golden Pavilion has excellent form on this track and is capable of winning again.
