Race Preview: Apparition did what was required to win on debut and looks to have more to come. Queen Leila is consistent and did look dangerous last time. She is dropping in trip. Nightshine won easily before trying his luck in the Grade 2 Golden Horseshoe. He is much better than that run suggests and can bounce back to best over the shorter distance. Smart pedigree Proud Mary haven't done badly and has a light weight could have more to come after a break.

Race Preview: Minerva Fae looks useful, was a promising second. If maintains good forms, she should be hard to beat in this race. Staggerwing ran a creditable race finishing second in open company last time. She must have a big say again. Social Graces had some support on debut but won better than the margin suggests and should relish the ground. Life's Treasures has met high-class individuals. She could get closer in her first run back from a rest.

Race Preview: Irish-bred Mission To Mars produced an eye-catching debut effort finishing second at the Vaal. It was a creditable run from a wide gate, and he should go on to open his account. Angle Of Attack has made breathing noises but will be having his third start and has more to come after making progress in a decent race last time. Uncle Bob was still quite inexperienced in his second outing but did kick on as well and needs to be included. Give Me A Chance isn't without chances of earning in this event.

Race Preview: Hawwaam filly Korcula is knocking at the door. She finished ahead of Flying World who had twice finished runner-up earlier and it could be the right race to open her account. Flying World has drawn well and should be right there again. Juvenile Shabeen Queen progressed nicely second time out and looks a threat.

Race Preview: 2025 Gauteng Guineas winner Parisian Walkway taking his place as well as Deepone, a Study Of Man entire who brings fair form from Ireland. The latter has solid form over this type of distance and he could be one that attracts betting support. Parisian Walkway is back from a layoff but has won fresh and must be respected. Money Heist was probably a touch too far back last time. His last win came at this venue and he should have every chance. Last start winner Gran Canaria isn't to be taken lightly either.

Race Preview: Heavenly Blue gelding Dear Doc showed something like his best form when racing after gelding last time. He can only improve and he has run well over the distance. Red Sparrow didn't disgrace herself when third after jumping from the widest gate last time. She could be hard to peg back if allowed to dictate the race. Naretoi didn't get the best of runs in transit last time. He has run some fair races of late but will need to overcome a wide draw again. There should not be much to choose between The Mightiest has won at this venue and can upset.

Race Preview: Hopscotch has run two decent races in a row. If she can maintain the form she could finally notch up win No 2. But Hat Furious was 1.15 lengths ahead of her when they last met and he has a 2kg swing in his favour so she will need to find more. Play With Fire was just ahead of Art Nouveau in what was a stronger race last time. The former has much in her favour and could have the edge again. More with upset claims, go wide.

Race Preview: Frere Jacques impressed in his penultimate start. He had excuses in his last start when trying his luck over 1600m and he should go close. Father Christmas wasn't far behind him the last time they met and he had excuses in his last start. It will be interesting to see how the pair go as it is their first try at this track. Blizzard Quest must be a threat on the back of his third-place finish over the track and trip last time. He has a 1.5kg claim and a better draw. Fostinovo also did well with a big weight last time and must be included.

Race Preview: Ubersmensch has done well racing from the front. He is dropping in task from his last start and could go all the way if allowed to. Shoreybomba should be well placed from a decent gate and he may just prefer the drop in distance. Longsword has much in his favour and could finally get back to winning ways. He won over this distance earlier in his career. Kotinos must have a say on his latest performance. He needs to get the timing right. More can pop up in this lower division handicap and make the exotic bets pay well.

Race Preview: Quiet Winter has run two good races in a row, even though last time dropping to 1000m. She should have every chance. One Tiger is taking his time to notch up that second career win but he has run decent races since his maiden win and it could be his day. Juvenile Whatsdamatterwithu won in good style first time out after gelding and is open to improvement. He must be respected. Valieva hasn't been far off but needs to find more for the win. She has drawn toward the outside which may be favourable. More with earning potential in it.
